Hi everyone,

In today's presentation, we'll talk about one of the largest international organisations in the world: the World Bank. The World Bank was formed in 1944. Initially, it was established to finance the reconstruction of countries devastated by World War II. Today it works in every major area of development that is important to fighting poverty, supporting economic growth, and improving the quality of people's lives in developing countries.

Its missions are to end extreme poverty by reducing the amount of the global population that lives in extreme poverty to 3 percent and to promote shared prosperity by increasing the incomes of the poorest 40 percent of people in every country.

The World Bank, whose official name was the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (IBRD), has its headquarters located in Washington D.C, the USA, staff from more than 170 countries and offices in over 130 locations. When it first began operations in 1946, it had 38 members. Now the number of its member countries has increased to 189. In other words, today most of the countries in the world are its members.

The World Bank is comprised of five institutions that specialize in different activities. All these institutions together are called the World Bank Group. It consists of:

• The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (IBRD) lends to low- and middle-income countries: International Development Association (IDA) lends to low-income countries;

• International Finance Corporation (IFC) lends to the private sector,

• Multilateral Investment Guarantee Agency (MIGA) encourages private companies to invest in foreign countries; and International Centre for Settlement of Investment Disputes (ICSID) helps private investors and foreign countries work out differences when they don't agree.

Its five institutions share a commitment to reducing poverty, increasing shared prosperity, and promoting sustainable development.

Since 1947, the World Bank has funded over 12,000 development projects, via traditional loans, interest-free credits, and grants. The amount of financial assistance has mounted to approximately $45.9 billion.

It began its work in Viet Nam in 1956. Since then, it has helped Viet Nam carry out a lot of development projects on various fields including COVID-19 response, clean energy. environment and energy resources, water management, urban development and disaster risk management, agriculture and rural development, education, health and poverty reduction.

As of October 4, 2022, the World Bank has provided US$25.16 billion in grants, loans, and credits to Vietnam through 216 operations since 1993.

Some of the outstanding projects or programs that the World Bank has helped Viet Nam carry out are:

The Results-Based Rural Water Supply and Sanitation Under the National Target Program helped address one of the biggest challenges in rural Vietnam by investing in physical infrastructure and improving the legal framework for sustained access to water supply and sanitation services. Between 2013 and 2019, more than one million people got access to sustainable water supply systems.

The Northeast and Red River Delta Regions Health System Support Project improved treatment capacity for 74 public hospitals at the district and provincial levels by investing in upgrades to the medical infrastructure and training for health workers.

The recently completed Vietnam Enhancing Teacher Education Program improved the quality of teaching and learning by delivering online continuous professional development training to more than 530,000 teachers and school principals in general education.

In brief, it can be said that the World Bank plays a very important part in the world. It particularly brings a lot of benefits to developing countries through financial assistance, technical support and expert advice.

That's all for now. If you have any questions, please feel free to ask. Thank you for listening!
