The three phases of human memory are the sensory memory, the short-term memory, and the long-term memory. This division of the memory into phases is based on the length of time of the memory.

Sensory memory is instantaneous memory. It is an image or memory that enters your mind only for a short period of time; it comes and goes in under a second. The memory will not last longer than that unless the information enters the short-term memory.

Information can be held in the short-term memory for about twenty seconds or as long as you are actively using it. If you repeat a fact to yourself, that fact will stay in your short-term memory as long as you keep repeating it. Once you stop repeating it, either it is forgotten or it moves into long term memory.

Long-term memory is the huge memory tank that can hold ideas and images for years and years. Information can be added to your long-term memory when you actively try to put it there through memorization or when an idea or image enters your mind on its own.

(156163) Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions

Telecommuting is some form of computer communication between employees' homes and offices. For employees whose job involve sitting at a terminal or word processor entering data or typing reports, the location of the computer is of no consequence. If the machine can communicate over telephone lines, when the work is completed, employees can dial the office computer and transmit the material to their employers. A recent survey in USA Today estimates that there are approximately 8,7 million telecommuters. But although the numbers are rising annually, the trend does not appear to be as significant as predicted when Business Week published “The Portable Executive” as its cover story a few years ago. Why hasn’t telecommuting become more popular?

Clearly, change simply takes time. But in addition, there has been active resistance on the part of many managers. These executives claim that supervising the telecommuters in a large work force scattered across the country would be too difficult, or, at least, systems for managing them are not yet developed, thereby complicating the manager’s responsibilities.

It is also true that employees who are given the option of telecommuting are reluctant to accept the opportunity. Most people feel that they need regular interaction with a group, and many are concerned that they will not have the same consideration for advancement if they are not more visible in the office setting. Some people feel that even when a space in their homes is set aside as a work area, they never really get away from the office.

38: With which of the following topics is the passage primarily concerned?

- A. An overview of telecommuting.
- B. The failure of telecommuting.
- C. The advantages of telecommuting.
- D. A definition of telecommuting.

39: How many Americans are involved in telecommuting?

- D. Fewer than estimated in USA Today.

40: The phrase “of no consequence” means.....

- A. of no use
- B. irrelevant
- C. of no good
- D. unimportant

41: The author mentions all of the following as concerns of telecommuting, EXCEPT.....

- A. the opportunities for advancement.
- B. the different system of supervision.
- C. the lack of interaction with a group.
- D. The work place is in the home.

42: The word “them” in the second paragraph refers to.....

- A. telecommuters
- B. systems
- C. executives
- D. responsibilities

43: The reason why telecommuting has not become popular is that the employees .

- A. need regular interaction with their families.

- B. are worried about the promotion if they are not seen at the office.
- C. feel that a work area in their home is away from the office.
- D. are ignorant of telecommuting.
