Nowadays, I am living in the hi-tech world with modern devices and equipment, so to be a successful 21st –century learner I should acquire essential skills. In my opinion, the first skill is how to use computers well. As I can see that today everything is programmed by computers and operated under people's control. Therefore, if I am good at using computer and can take full advantages of them I can have a brighter future. The next skill I should have is living skills (such as cooking, swimming, fighting and protecting myself) which are the basic ones I have to know to help me survive in even the most difficult situations. Last but not least, I find myself also need to have soft skills. They are the supportive factors to help me get along better with other people and adapt more easily to new living or working environment.
